House of Correction Sweeper Skipped Out Yesterday.

Rutland, July 14.—"Hurdy" Cline of West Rutland, a well known character, while sweeping out the office at the house of correction yesterday about 7 o'clock decided he wanted to escape and so took "French leave." About 20 minutes later he was captured by Deputy Sheriff John F. Smith, who is employed at the house of correction. Hurdy had been allowed to work in the corridors, instead of the shop, because he had an injured wrist. He was committed to the institution from West Rutland July 1, for intoxication and breach of the peace. His sentence would have expired September 17 but he will now have to commence over again.

Hurdy went along State street as far as Columbia avenue; then cut through the Columbia Quarrying company's yard to the hills and waded through Otter creek to the creek road where he was overtaken by Mr. Smith and B. B. Bree who had him in sight most of the time. He was brought back to the jail and locked up in a closed cell where he will probably pass the next five days.

It is possible that a charge will be brought against the runaway for breaking jail.

J. M. Montgomery, Suicide, Left Letter For His Son.

The community was greatly shocked to hear at an early hour on Monday of the death of Julius Montgomery by his own hand. Mr. Montgomery was not quite in his usual health Friday and Saturday. On Sunday he was out and seen by many of his friends, and went to the home of his son in the other part of the village. Mrs. Montgomery, who is subject to severe attacks of headache, was ill on Saturday and that evening their son thought it best for her to go to their home over Sunday, that she might get rested and recover from her illness sooner, which she did, and did not return till about half past six Monday. Mrs. Montgomery found the house locked and supposing her husband had gone to work effected an entrance through a window and discovered nothing unusual till she went to the shed, when upon opening the door the lifeless body met her view. The shock was a severe one, she being entirely alone at the house, and for a time her mind was rather unsettled, but upon collecting herself, she called to the neighbors nearby, who soon gave the alarm. Physicians were called to attend Mrs. Montgomery and Dr. Bailey, health officer, and D. H. Morse, selectman, were soon at the scene of the tragedy when the body of Mr. Montgomery, which was suspended by a rope fastened to a rafter in the upper story, was taken down and properly cared for. A letter addressed to his son was found later, which was with his watch. Everything was carefully planned and no evidence of anything but deliberation was discovered; yet the friends of Mr. Montgomery are confident that, for a time at least, he must have suffered from some form of insanity. Julius M. Montgomery was the fifth child of John and Charlotte Ellis Montgomery, born in Braintree February 23, 1847 and through his childhood and early manhood was a resident of that town. About 30 years ago he married Minnie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Flint of Braintree who with Elmer Montgomery, their only son, survives him. Mr. and Mrs. Montgomery have lived in town about 25 years and are well known. For many years Mr. Montgomery was employed by the firm of Marcott & Hayes, but for the last two years, has worked for the E. F. Emerson company and it is a universal regret that he should have passed away in this manner; while the most heartfelt sympathy is expressed for the wife and son. One brother, Mason Montgomery, of Braintree, also survives him. He arrived here on yesterday afternoon.

Miss Jennie Rabbitt from Washington is again at Randolph Inn for a few weeks.

Mrs. H. G. Beckman has returned from New York where she has been several days with her cousin, Mrs. Coy.

Mrs. Carrie Haufler O'Brien has gone to her home in West Somerville, Mass., after a three weeks' stay with her mother, Mrs. Mary Carr.

Miss Frances Spooner has accepted a position in Boston in the employ of James Shay Stock and Bond company till the first of September.

Severe forest fires are raging in Braintree, which it is hoped are under control at present. One man there had 12 acres of woodland burned over.

Miss Lucinda Howard entered the sanatorium on Monday for an operation for appendicitis from which she has had repeated attacks, the last one being very severe.

John Connolly arrived in town on the Sunday night train from Dickinson, North Dakota, where he has been employed for 19 months in the office of the Dickinson Press. Mr. Connolly will be in Randolph for a month before his return to the West.

"SWEET ARE THE CHARMS."

[Song by Barton Booth, actor, 1681-1733.]

Sweet are the charms of her I love,
More fragrant than the damask rose,
Soft as the down of turtle-dove,
Gentle as air when zephyr blows,
Refreshing as descending rains,
To sunburnt climes and thirsty plains.

True as the needle to the pole,
Or as the dial to the sun;
Constant as gliding waters roll,
Whose swelling tides obey the moon;
From every other charmer free,
My life and love shall follow thee.

The lamb the flowery meads devours,
The dam the tender kid pursues;
Sweet Philomel, in shady bowers
Of verdant spring, her notes renews;
All follow what they most admire;
As I pursue my soul's desire.

Nature must change her beautiful face,
And vary as the seasons rise;
As winter to the spring gives place,
Summer to the approach of autumn flies.
No change on love the seasons bring,
Love only knows perpetual spring.

Devouring Time, with stealing pace,
Makes lofty oaks and cedars bow;
And marble towers, and gates of brass,
In his rude march he levels low;
But Time, destroying far and wide,
Love from the soul can never divide.

Death only, with his cruel dart,
The gentle godhead can remove;
And drive him from the bleeding heart
To mingle with the blessed above,
Where, known to all his kindred train,
He finds a lasting rest from pain.

Love, and his sister fair, the Soul,
Twin-born, from heaven together came;
Love will the universe control,
When dying seasons lose their name;
Divine abodes shall own his power,
Is not an unusual sight, at least to a

HELP THE OLD FOLKS.

A Helping Hand Extended to Many Old People in Barre.

Be considerate of the aged. Lend them a helping hand. Make life easy for them. The infirmities of age are many. Most old people have a bad back. The kidneys are weak. Are worn out with years of work. Backache makes days of misery. Urinary troubles nights of unrest. There's a ray of sunshine for the aged. Doan's Kidney Pills will make life easier.

They are doing so for old and young. Barre people are learning this. Many are testifying to it. Read the following local endorsement. William Stephens, stone cutter, of 78 Maple avenue, Barre, Vt., says: "I know that Doan's Kidney Pills are an excellent remedy for those who suffer from backache or kidney trouble. My mother used them off and on for a number of years. She is over eighty years old, and, of course, does not expect to be cured, but she is more than glad to know of a medicine which brings such prompt relief as Doan's Kidney Pills. She always keeps them in the house, and never fails to recommend them to her friends when an opportunity presents itself."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

Thirteen of 16 Ninth Grade Pupils Passed Into High School.

The following is a list of the pupils who passed the town examination and are eligible to enter the high school this fall: Esther Call, Ruby Reed, Merion Tracy, Fred McAuley, Lewis Hayward, Jessie Pratt, Anthony Wright, Eldon Martin, Clayton Spencer, Alice Waldo, Robert Clogston, Clyde Hutehinson and Elythe Riddle. Those standing the highest are Clayton Spencer and Eldon Martin, they being tied for first place. Ruby Reed is third and Alice Waldo fourth. Out of sixteen ninth grade pupils 13 passed, and two more were very close to it. Those who failed to get the required standard will have an opportunity to make this up during the summer and take another examination the last Thursday and Friday in August. The school board wish to say that they believe the above record shows good work on the part of our teachers and superintendent, and we hope to see all of these pupils enter our high school this fall. (Signed) C. W. Cram, chairman of the school board.

George Nichols is in poor health and is confined to the house.

On a number from here went to Northfield yesterday to help put out the forest fire near E. Hopkins.

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Belknap of Belknap Falls returned to their home yesterday afternoon after a visit at the home of J. E. Martin and F. H. Nichols.

A short time ago the neighbors of W. W. Whitney turned out in a body and did his haying for him, a kindness which is much appreciated by Mr. Whitney and family.

The funeral of Mrs. A. M. Martin was held Sunday afternoon, the Rev. D. H. Strong officiating. Blanche Nixon sang two beautiful selections. There was a profusion of flowers. Burial was in the village cemetery.

While Frank Bacon and wife were driving down the hill near Allie Wilford's recently the harness broke, frightening the horse which ran, throwing them out. Mrs. Bacon was so unfortunate as to have one arm broken just above the wrist.

HER FATHER REFUSED BAIL.

Annie Rosen Pleads Not Guilty to Setting Block on Fire.

Rutland, July 14.—Annie Rosen of West Rutland, the 17 years old girl who was arrested Saturday night on the charge of accepting the bribe of John Pifko, who is alleged to have offered her $100 if she would burn her father's business block, was arraigned before Justice R. H. Stickney yesterday on the charge of arson. She pleaded not guilty, and the case was continued one week. In default of $2,000 bail she was sent to jail. Her father is wealthy but will not bail her. Pifko denied that he had any conversation with the girl about the building.

FOURTH CELEBRATORS

PAY FINES IN COURT.

Many Boys Make Up For Damage Which They Did on The "Night Before" in Enosburg and Vicinity.

Enosburg Falls, July 14.—Yesterday was a banner day for police court cases, the majority being those of 10 boys who celebrated the Fourth as they had no business to. The trials were conducted by City Judge N. N. Post of St. Albans and State's Attorney F. S. Topper of the same city prosecuted. For breaking into the Methodist church at West Enosburg, ringing the bell and doing considerable damage, eight youths of that village were arrested. Seven pleaded guilty and were fined $1 and costs. The respondents were: Harold, Howard and Clyde Oltz, Arthur Regue, Garland Page, Fred and William Tinsant and Albert Kettell. The case against William Tinsant being not proved. Three from this village pleaded guilty to similar mischief at the Episcopal church here and were fined a like sum, the costs in the ten cases averaging $7 each. The village boys were Olin Duso, Harold Mitchell and Eversy Blair.

Richard Erwin, Sr., arrested for intoxication Saturday evening, pleaded guilty yesterday and was fined $5 and costs of $10.55, which he paid. John Donnelly pleaded guilty to a charge of intoxication but could not pay fine and costs amounting to $18.39 and will serve the alternative sentence in county jail at St. Albans. He also pleaded guilty to the charge of furnishing and was fined $300 or three months in jail which he will probably serve at the end of his present sentence.

Charles Blair was arraigned on the charge of cruelty to animals but the case was continued a few days owing to the absence of witnesses.

Forever and Forever.

I carved her name upon the tree,
Or her initials, rather,
Intwined with mine, as you may see.
Today 'twould prove great bother,
But then—life then was at its spring,
Love's labor caused but laughter,
When love was young, without a sting
Or thought of grief hereafter.

I'm sure of this and that we swore
We'd never, never, never,
But love each other more and more
Forever and forever.
The proof is here, as you'll confess,
This puzzle me, though, sadly:
If "M. H." stood for Mamie Hess,
Or was it Mabel Hadley?

LUDWIG THE LUNATIC

Patti Once Threw Him Into a Frenzy of Madness.

A FREAK OF THE CRAZY KING.

He Frightened and Enraged the Great Diva by His Strange Whims, and When She Finally Sang For Him in Munich It Drove Him Wild.

When Patti was in the first heyday of her fame Ludwig II., the mad king of Bavaria, set his heart on having her sing for him at his private auditorium in Munich. He wrote letter after letter, begging, imploring, offering extravagant sums of money, but Patti resolutely refused to go. She had heard too many stories of Ludwig's freaks and was desperately afraid of him, but at last the king offered her a sum so enormous that it seemed ridiculous to refuse it. Then the singer plucked up courage and started for Munich. When she and her maid alighted at the station not even a carriage was there to meet them, and they had to inquire the name of the best hotel and call a cab. That was the first shock to the diva's nerves and temper. After luncheon she started out to see the town and incidentally to examine the posters announcing Europe's greatest singer. Not a mention of her name could she find. She rushed back to the hotel and told her maid to pack the trunks.

Just at that moment a resplendent officer delivered a letter from the king. The letter stated curtly that his majesty would wait for her at 7 o'clock precisely in the royal palace, where his singer in ordinary, Mme. Fischer, would give her further directions. Mme. Fischer would also sing with Mme. Patti the duets which his majesty wished to hear. A programme was inclosed. Patti wept with rage.

"I have never been treated so brutally," she said. "I shall leave at once. Tell the king so. I will not sing—never, never, never!" The officer pleaded with the irate prima donna. His majesty had been wild with excitement ever since he knew she would come and had not slept for three nights, so great was his joy at the prospect of hearing her.

"Besides," added the officer, "you know your king is—"

"Crazy," snapped Patti. "Yes, that's very comforting, isn't it? I don't know why I ever came." Just then she caught sight of this poster:

"The king commands Mme. Patti to appear in pure white, without any color whatever, and not by any means to wear a satin gown, but soft wool. Silk is painful to his majesty."

"His majesty will have to be pained. I have no white woolen gown except my peignoir. I shall wear red velvet."

"Red!" groaned the officer. "Oh, no, not red sends his majesty into fits. If you appear in red, he will scream and have convulsions. Oh, do be patient, madame! I will bring Mme. Fischer to you. She understands the king's nerves. She will explain."

He fled from the room, and shortly after Mme. Fischer appeared upon the scene. She soothed Patti into good humor and also attacked the white wool peignoir and transformed it into a most becoming Greek robe.

Before 7 the royal carriage arrived at the hotel and Patti went to the palace. She was led through dimly lighted rooms and corridors into Ludwig's private theater, which was in utter darkness save for the moonlight that entered through the windows. Patti stood upon the dark stage, while an orchestra, somewhere out of sight, began a soft prelude. Through the gloom she could just make out a white face in the royal box opposite the stage. Not another auditor was in the great hall.

Patti felt the cold shivers creeping over her. She shook with nervousness and fear, and when she should have begun her aria not a sound could she make. She opened her mouth, but her throat was paralyzed from nervous terror. There was a pause. The king sprang up and leaned forward out of the box, his white face gleaming in the moonlight. The violins repeated the prelude. Patti gathered herself together and made one heroic effort. Her voice rang out into the great empty place, and the king sank back into the dark box.

Patti, though badly scared, made the effort of her life and finished the aria from "La Traviata" triumphantly and stood flushed with victory. Dead silence. Not a sound came from the gloom before her. She went off the stage in a temper. Mme. Fischer was behind the scenes, and Patti waited with her for the signal to sing the next number. A messenger appeared at the door. His majesty had had enough music and had gone to his apartments. For a moment Patti stood stunned. Then she laughed. The audacity was so colossal that it was funny. Mme. Fischer took the diva to supper and then home.

The next morning Mme. Fischer called at the hotel once more, accompanied by the court chamberlain, who bore the promised check, an autograph of the thanks from the king and some jewels of great value. King Ludwig, Mme. Fischer said, was in one of his maddest moods, wild with regret, cursing himself and cursing Patti. He had walked the floor all night, frowning that he was a traitor, for Patti's voice had so ravished his senses that for one moment he had gone over to Italian music and had been false to Wagner, the one musician who alone and satisfied his majesty's soul.

"That was better than having bored him," added Patti, shrugging her shoulders.

On the Country Picnic. She hung her head.
"Really, Mr. Mannerling," she stammered, "this—er—is so—so sudden."
"For goodness' sake," cried Mannerling, "stop blushing so! Here comes a bull."—New York Press.

One Tree to Save a State's Lumber Supply.

To supply California, the southern half of which has been badly denuded of its original forestation, with an abundance of timber; to aid in the increase of rainfall over a dry area which is destined in the near future to be called on to support an immense population; to supply more than 12,000,000 ties yearly to the railroads of the United States, and last, but not least, to furnish a perpetual bee pasture for hundreds of apiaries—these, all these, are the things which are beginning to be written in the history of one tree in southern California.

That tree is the eucalyptus, of many species, and the lumber from which has but lately been discovered to possess qualifications for use in certain industries possessed by no other tree, wild or domestic, known to man.

As a mere beginning of this plan the Santa Fe Railway company has bought 10,000 acres of land in San Diego county, California, and is planting it as fast as possible to young eucalyptus trees six or eight inches tall. Several hundred acres of this vast tract have been set out already, and fully ninety-five per cent. of the trees have taken hold in good shape and shown signs of growth.

One of the most interesting things about the Eucalyptus is its varieties, of which there are at least 150 good species, with probably a third as many sub-species which are not commonly listed in the catalogues.

They grow to be of great size; in Australia individuals of some varieties have been known to attain a height of 300 feet. In California, where trees were planted about some of the old haciendas forty years ago, they are still growing and their ultimate size is entirely problematical.

At eighteen years of age a tree will cut into at least two railroad ties. A blue gum six or eight years old, if cut to the ground, will send up shoots that will be seventy-five or one hundred feet tall in another eight years.—Harry H. Dunn, in Technical World for August.
